About Me:

Currently, I am enrolled in "Soy Henry," which is a technology bootcamp offering a program with a stack that I already master. Nevertheless, my goal is to absorb best practices to enhance my skills, as well as leverage the contacts I may form during the course and have the backing of an official educational entity.

I also want to emphasize the importance I place on my education. When my financial situation changes, I plan to return to university. I feel I have a lot to contribute to any company, and if I don't, I have the determination and commitment to rise to any challenge.

Skills:

Frontend: JavaScript | React.js | CSS | HTML | Sass | Tailwind | TypeScript

Backend: Node.js | Express.js | MongoDB | SQLite | NestJS | Next.js | PostgreSQL

Tools: Git | Github | English | Framer Motion | ChatGPT | VS Code

 I didn't mention my passion for the English language, but I have the same commitment and motivation for its learning. Through apps, various input methods; podcasts, fully English devices, consuming documentation in English, documenting my own projects in English, and recreationally, watching series/movies also in English to be constantly immersed in the language. ***

Experience:

Regarding my work experience, I decided to leave it for the end because it's from a completely different area than the IT industry. I worked for over 11 years in gastronomy, specifically as a waiter.

At the time when studying programming wasn't in my plans and my commitment to my job was total, I managed to work in top-level companies because I set it as a goal for myself. I have the same determination now but towards the IT sector. If required, I can provide more details about my past gastronomic experience.
